Teacher's Introduction

This resource is primarily intended to be used during revision by students studying GCSE (9–1) Eduqas (C680QS) Media Studies: Component 1: Section A (Exploring Media Language and Representation) and Section B (Exploring Media Industries and Audiences) for assessment from 2027.

Pages from this resource which are relevant to the set products for assessment in 2026 can be found in the appendix at the end of the resource.

As a revision tool, this resource does not aim to cover the material in depth, but rather provide visual 'mind maps' of the entire GCSE Eduqas Component 1 specification, which students can use as the basis of their revision, covering all the key terminology and knowledge that they need for their exam. The resource is especially suited to visual learners, and those learners who find it hard to revise from written notes.

Remember!
Always check the exam board website for new information, including changes to the specification and sample assessment material.

The resource consists of:

- 24 completed mind maps, which provide solutions to the activity mind maps, labelled:
- 24 activity mind maps (partially complete) for students to complete, labelled:

All mind maps are provided in A3 and A4 formats.

How to use this resource:

- The sheets can be handed out at the end of the course, or at the end of each topic for revision purposes.
- The mind maps can be printed out poster size and displayed on the classroom walls as the topic is being taught, so that students have a visual reminder of what they have been covering in their lessons.
- The resource also includes partially completed mind maps. Students could be encouraged to complete the exercises as a way of recapping knowledge from the topic at the end of teaching. More-able students could, additionally, be asked to think of further examples to illustrate the points, whereas lower-ability students could provide more illustrations, or colour-code the mind maps, to aid memory of the key topics.

MEDIA LANGUAGE

Signs are designed to convey meaningful and important information in a condensed way.

The study and understanding of signs and the meaning they communicate is called semiotics.

In the media, it is agreed among producers and audiences that specific meanings can be attributed to certain signs.

Denotation refers to what is literally visible within a sign.

Connotations are the meanings associated with a sign or symbol.

Charles Sanders Peirce was an American philosopher who identified three different types of signifier:

An icon is a signifier which resembles. For example, a bicycle is used to indicate a cycle lane.
An index is a signifier which is physically or literally connected to what is being simplified. For example, the skull and cross bones indicates a toxic substance.
With a symbol there is no resemblance between the signifier and the signified. For example, the interlocking symbols indicate male and female solely due to a collective agreement among people.

Roland Barthes was a French theorist and semiotician who suggested that a story's narrative uses five different types of code. These codes work together to enable the reader to make sense of what is happening in the story.

- Action Codes – a signifier or event (often very simple) that leads to narrative progression. e.g. the pointing of a gun suggests that violence will occur.
- Paradigmatic Codes – the set-up and resolution of a puzzle. e.g. a film poster might show an image of a closed treasure chest (the puzzle). The audience must see the film in order to discover what is inside the treasure chest (the resolution).
- Semic Codes – signs referring to additional meaning through the use of connotation. e.g. A model lifting weights implies that they are strong or like exercising.
- Symbolic Codes – a range of non-literal references found in an image or a text, normally presented through two contrasting codes. e.g. good vs bad, man vs woman.
- Cultural codes – all references found within a text that can be understood with a good knowledge of news, events and culture, both contemporary and historical. e.g. the image of the Union flag usually implies British pride.

Mode of address

The type of media language used to speak to audiences. For example, lifestyle magazines the cover star will look into the frame (at the camera) creating a direct mode of address.

Iconography

Visual codes that audiences associate with certain genres. For example, frightening masks will often appear on the posters for horror movies.

Typography

The style of font. This helps to create a house style or brand identity for a media product as well as helping to establish genre. For example, boldface is a common convention of tabloid newspapers.

Intertextuality

When a media text references another text in order to shape meaning or affect audience interpretation. For example, advertisements may reference to a popular film in order to create comedy and make it stick in the audience's head.

Ferdinand de Saussure was one of the key founders of semiotics. He proposed that signs have meanings via two elements:

- The signifier is the form of the sign that can be seen, heard, touched or tasted.
- The signified is the idea or meaning conveyed by that signifier. An example of the relationship between signifier and signified working in correlation can be found in one theatrical poster for the film Jaws (1975). The signifier is a young woman swimming in the ocean with an open-mouthed great white shark swimming beneath the surface of the water. The signified is the idea that the shark is probably about to eat the woman. You are likely to find examples of this in all four media frameworks.

Genre provides us with a way of clearly categorising media products.

We can determine which products fit into which genre by looking out for the repetition of certain codes and conventions.

For example, a film is likely to fit into the gangster genre if it contains certain character types (gangster, narrative beats (a heist, an arrest), techniques (rapid editing, low-key lighting) and features (iconography (guns, dark suits, getaways).

Producers incorporate new and unexpected codes and conventions into their products in order to maintain audience interest. Genre hybridity (the incorporating of codes and conventions from multiple genres into a single product) is an effective way of achieving this.

For example, the Dead End film incorporates elements of horror with elements of comedy genre.

MEDIA REPRESENTATION

When it comes to analysing representation in the media, it is useful to be aware of contextual factors that have affected cultural attitudes in Western society. Listed below are a number of specific or ongoing events that are likely to inform your analysis.

Gender	Ethnicity	Age
  In 2017, there was a huge increase in accusations from women against powerful men in the media of sexual harassment and assault. The hashtags #MeToo and #TimesUp were shared by thousands of women exposing an underlying sexism running through mainstream media (particularly the film industry). This movement has greatly enhanced conversations about female representation in the media.	  Martin Luther King Jr's 'I Have a Dream' speech in 1963 was a defining moment for the civil rights movement. With it came a rapid change in rights for the US African-American community.	 Traditionally in the media, children have often been depicted as being helpless and in need of saving. Particularly in mainstream cinema, recent representations, e.g. Stranger Things and Pokemon, have shown children to be capable and often 'more in the know' than their parents about important issues.
A recent statistic revealed that the greatest killer of men under 45 in the UK is suicide. A concerted effort has been made to counter hypermasculine representations in the media and allow men to be presented as being emotionally vulnerable.	The Black Lives Matter movement was founded in 2013 following a number of unprovoked shootings by police on African-Americans in the USA.	Historically, teenagers have been depicted either as stropy or as violent and rebellious thugs. Over time, mainstream media has started to acknowledge the complex issues of adolescence, representing teenagers as ambitious and three-dimensional. This particularly applies to the millennial generation, who are largely concerned about mental health and an uncertain job market.
 According to certain sources, women (on average) earn less than the average male salary in the United States. This inequality is largely reflected in the media. For example, only two of 2016's top 10 paid actors were women.	The hashtag #OscarsSoWhite, which raised awareness of the lack of diversity of white actors at the 2015 Academy Awards. In June 2016, the British people voted to leave the European Union. Many believe that racist attitudes towards immigrants largely determined the result of the vote, e.g. a column in The Sun (the highest-selling newspaper in Britain) described Syrian migrants as 'cockroaches'.	The majority of the baby boomer generation are currently in their 60s or 70s. More so than in previous generations, many baby boomers are still healthy, highly active and in possession of significant disposable income. This is being reflected in the mainstream media, particularly in advertising as producers will often target the grey pound (a marketing term used to describe the high amounts of money older people have to spend on consumer goods).

Reduction is representations that reduce a person or a group of people to a narrow set of traits and characteristics, e.g. all women want to be domestic housewives.

Representation

Passive objects are characters that have no active role in shaping the narrative. They are only there to be looked at as events unfold around them.

Under-representation

Definition: People or social groups who do not appear (or who appear very briefly) in a media product. This means they do not benefit from an individual's or a group's perspective.

Example: Homosexual couples have been historically under-represented in television adverts.

Misrepresentation

Definition: When a media product depicts a person, a group of people or an event in a way that is misleading or unfairly negative.

Example: Many people accuse newspapers such as The Sun of misrepresenting the entire British Muslim community as a threat to traditional British values.

Magazine Covers

Genre Conventions of Lifestyle Magazines

Dateline and issue number refer to information relating to the date of publication and the number of previous publications.

Cover price: information that reveals the price of the publication. In tabloid magazines, this will appear in a larger font.

The main coverline is considered the main title of the cover page. This often corresponds to the main image or to the model of that issue.

Cover lines are titles/excerpts from articles featured in the issue. They appear on the front cover. Editors believe these will sell the issue if they feature heavily.

A puff is an added incentive featured on the magazine cover (e.g. a voucher or instructions for a new diet). This usually contrasts stylistically with the rest of the cover.

The masthead is the magazine's name displayed on the cover.

Masthead

Main Coverline

Coverline

Coverline

Puff

A barcode will usually feature in the bottom corner of the cover.

Colour scheme

Colours carry dozens of meanings and connotations. Media producers are highly aware of the qualities that audiences associate with certain colours. Producers will use this knowledge to create a colour palette that helps to establish a particular tone or genre. In the case of GQ, the following colours combine to emphasise ideas of wealth, dominance and control in order to become the ultimate 'masculine man'.

Colour	Connotations
Gold	courage, wealth, success
Black	strength, danger
Orange	optimism, stimulation, warmth
White	goodness, peace, successful beginning

Imagery

Gaze Raheem Sterling faces directly into the camera, making eye contact with the reader. This is in order to form a personal connection between the reader and the magazine.	Facial expression The slight smirk suggests that Sterling is aware that he is not the typical role model that audiences see in mainstream media products. He is also looking downwards, which suggests further authority.
Shot type The full shot on Raheem Sterling communicates to audiences that his athleticism is a defining factor. The slightly lower angle on him also shows that the audience are in a submissive position to Sterling and should look up to his authority.	Body language His feet are more than shoulder width apart, which has connotations of dominance. His relaxed upper-body language suggests that he has a level of comfort with his position of authority.

3 THINGS TO KNOW ABOUT MALALA YOUSAFZAI

1

Malala is known as an activist for education for women from the age of 15, whilst travelling home from school. In 2012, Malala was sought out by name by the Taliban, who wanted to silence her.

2

Malala was taken to a hospital in Pakistan and later transferred to the UK following her recovery and an outpouring of support for Malala, she was invited to talk at the United Nations conference aged 16 years old.

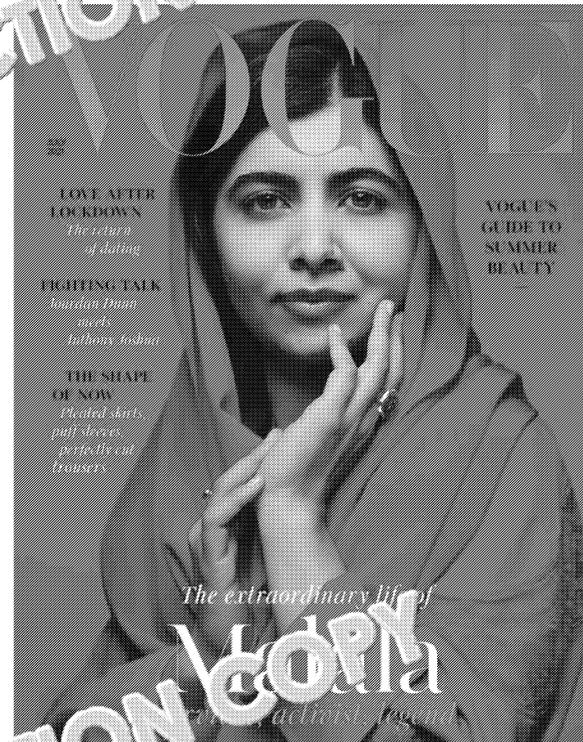

3

Malala's opinions on marriage are controversial and made her unpopular with some Muslims. She shocked many people by marrying in 2021.

Magazines: Set Product
Vogue magazine, July 2021

Colour scheme: A limited colour palette. The bright red is likely to connote joy, power, passion and courage. The grey/silver and gold connote elegance.

Mode of address: Malala's direct mode of address displays her level and strength as a woman. It also invites the audience to connect with her.

Rule of thirds: A traditional design. The masthead at the top and the centred Malala captions at the bottom frame the main image of Malala symmetrically.

Imagery: Malala is shown in medium close-up, with a direct address. The headscarf she wears indicates her culture and her religion, and is an essential part of her identity. Her jewellery and make-up are understated and show that she is feminine as well as strong.

The Taliban: The Taliban disagreed with past Afghan statutes that allowed the employment of women in a mixed-sex workplace. They believed that this was a breach of purdah and Sharia law. They also believe that girls should not be allowed to work.

THE GUARDIAN – FACT SHEET

Format: Broadsheet (compact since 2018)
Date of Publication: 18th January 2022
Average Circulation: 105,134 (as of July 2021)
Core Demographic: ABC1, 52% male readership
Politics: Liberal (left wing), anti-Brexit
Average Age of Readers: 44
Ownership: Owned and published by The Guardian Media Group (this allows the paper to maintain editorial independence)
Sister Papers: The Observer, The Guardian Weekly
Online Readership: 42 million
Dominant Image: Conservative Prime Minister (Boris Johnson) is candidly photographed running with his dog through St James's Park in London.
Secondary Stories: A story about the UK's growing involvement with the war in Ukraine and a report on an inquiry into the Conservative government's handling of PPE during the pandemic.

The Guardian represents itself as a serious paper by covering serious topics: politics, war, foreign affairs, the arts and the economy.

Representations of Right-wing Figures in a Left-wing Paper

Representation	Context	Implication
Main Image shows Boris Johnson running through St James's Park in London with his dog, Dilyn. In the candid photograph, Johnson is wearing mismatched clothing.	A candid photograph is one that is not planned by the subject – they are photographed more naturally without posing or preparing.	It shows Johnson is represented in a more 'normal' way without his advisor's influence. It suggests that he is a 'man of the people'.
Headline represents the Conservative prime minister as untrustworthy and unfit for leadership, despite holding the most influential position in the country.	The Guardian has consistently supported more liberal (left-wing) values through its criticism of the Conservative Party and its policies.	The criticism of the PM is implied through the viewpoint of his previous Chief Advisor.
Main Splash represents the prime minister as someone who is not fit for office, with his failings at No. 10 during the pandemic. The phrase 'Johnson admitting to...' shows his guilt.	The Guardian has consistently criticised the Conservative Party and its leaders. For the 'Partygate' scandal, this has been since the Daily Mirror (left-wing tabloid) leaked the garden party photos in 2021.	The negative representation has become a self-representation of Boris Johnson as the language codes show he was 'admitting to Parliament' of his mistakes.
The juxtaposition of the most influential position in the UK (prime minister) compared to secondary images of working-class sitcom characters.	The Guardian targets an ABC1 audience – an upper-middle-class audience who have high levels of education and well-paid jobs (as they still need to earn their living).	It represents the readers of The Guardian as being quite different from Johnson (particularly important as he is not represented positively).

CONTEXT: THE MEN ON THE COVER

Boris Johnson: Previously famous for his role as Mayor of London from 2008 to 2016, Johnson was one of the most notable Leave campaigners in the run-up to the Brexit vote and served as the Minister of Foreign Affairs. He resigned as Prime Minister in July 2022 after a failed attempt to negotiate a withdrawal agreement with the EU. In May 2019, Boris Johnson replaced May as Prime Minister of the United Kingdom. In January 2022, Boris Johnson had said that he had no idea that parties and gatherings were happening at No. 10; however, in December 2021, photographs were released of him at a social gathering in the garden of No. 10 during the pandemic lockdowns.

Dominic Cummings: The previous Chief Advisor to Boris Johnson from July 2019. Cummings came to public attention when, in May 2020, during the UK nationwide lockdown, he travelled to his parents' house while experiencing symptoms of coronavirus. After being called out by the UK press, Boris Johnson publicly supported him, but Cummings resigned in November 2020. Since leaving his position, Cummings has been very critical of the government's handling of the pandemic.

The Guardian is able to maintain a certain level of journalistic integrity because it is not largely owned by shareholders. While it makes no claims of political bias, its content generally suggests a left-wing ideology.

Puff Box Image: A serious (returning to work after isolations) presented with popular sitcoms, such as The Office and The Office. The juxtaposition suggests that the art can be a serious debate.

The Guardian: © The Guardian Media Group, 2022

UK sending anti-aircraft weapons to Ukraine

Deep Subbath
 Defence correspondent

Britain has begun supplying Ukraine with some high calibre anti-aircraft weapons as part of its military aid package, according to a report from the Financial Times.

Andy Warhol was an American painter, director and producer who was a leading figure in the 'pop art' visual art movement. By referring to himself as an 'artist', such an influential figure in their puff box, The Guardian suggests that the paper can be educational as well as entertaining for its audience.

THE Sun

The main body of text finishes with an instruction for audiences to find out how they can sign up to the 'Jabs Army'. This instruction could be identified as an action code, according to the narrative theory proposed by Roland Barthes.

THE SUN – FACT SHEET

Format: Tabloid

Date of Publication: 12th June 2018

Average Circulation: 1,211,000 (March 2018)

Core Demographic: C2, D, E (middle-aged, lower readership)

Politics: Right wing, pro-Brexit

Ownership: News Corporation (owned by Rupert Murdoch)

Sister Papers: The Sun on Sunday (previously News of the World)

Online Readership: 5,310,000 (daily)

The COVID vaccine rollout in the UK was reported as a major success. The Sun has paired its 'Jabs Army' story with an off-lead about Brexit, which represents both events as a success (arguably due to the involvement of The Sun in both). The representation of reality shows that The Sun is clearly biased towards the acting Conservative government.

The Sun has a long history of constructing highly negative representations of certain individuals and groups. Notable examples of this are listed below...

Positively represented	Negatively represented	Under-represented
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Hard Brexit</li> <li>• Celebrities</li> <li>• NHS</li> <li>• The Sun</li> <li>• The Sun's readers</li> <li>• Boris Johnson</li> </ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• European Union</li> <li>• Pro-Leave</li> <li>• Anti-vaxxers</li> </ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Left-wing voices</li> <li>• Pro-EU voices</li> </ul>

COVID-19 Timeline

28th February 2020 – First recorded death from COVID-19

23rd March 2020 – Boris Johnson, the UK's prime minister, announces the first UK lockdown, ordering people to 'stay at home'.

10th May 2020 – Boris Johnson announces the first easing of lockdown measures. Further easing of restrictions happened in June (reopening of schools) and August (Eat Out to Help Out).

22nd September 2020 – Boris Johnson announces new restrictions to stop the rising cases of coronavirus in England.

8th December 2020 – UK grandmother Margaret Keenan becomes the first UK resident to receive the coronavirus vaccine. The elderly and medically vulnerable are prioritised for vaccination.

1st January 2021 – At the time of the set newspaper going to print, the UK government was offering vaccines to those who are clinically vulnerable or aged over 70.

Brexit Timeline

23rd June 2016 – The British people vote to leave the European Union (51.9% voted to leave, 48.1% voted to remain). David Cameron resigns the following day.

5th July 2016 – After little competition or objection in the leadership race, Theresa May becomes prime minister of the UK.

24th May 2019 – Having suffered three defeats in the House of Commons to complete a Brexit deal, Theresa May announces her resignation as prime minister.

24th July 2019 – After winning a Conservative Party leadership contest, Boris Johnson becomes prime minister and promises to 'Get Brexit done'.

31st January 2020 – Britain formally ceases to be a member of the European Union after a lengthy trade deal negotiation.

Masthead: Written in a bold, sans-serif font that stands out for readability. The letters are slanted forward, giving it a cutting-edge style. The background is a solid color, making the masthead stand out from the rest of the page.

Red Top: Includes the website address. It is placed at the top of the page, ensuring that the reader can easily find the website and appeal to the target audience.

Colour Scheme: The newspaper uses a color scheme of red, white, and black. The red is used for the masthead and the main headline. The white is used for the background and the text. The black is used for the text and the masthead. The color scheme is simple and effective, making the newspaper easy to read.

Off-lead: The off-lead is a short paragraph that makes reference to the main story. It is placed at the top of the page, below the main headline. The off-lead is slanted forward, giving it a cutting-edge style. The background is a solid color, making the off-lead stand out from the rest of the page.

Personification: When human characteristics or personality are applied to a non-human object, it can make advertising more vibrant and allow audiences to view a product in a certain way.

Context- Gender Roles in Society

In terms of women's roles, the 1950s are known as an era of domesticity and conformity. Having been forced into traditionally male jobs during the Second World War, women were largely encouraged to be domestic housewives and allow men to retain their positions as 'breadwinners'. Despite the social change that occurred as a result of the civil rights movement and the second wave of feminism in the 1960s and 1970s, advertisements (until quite recently) have primarily depicted white, middle-class models that conform to traditional gender ideas. Print advertising became a booming industry during the 1950s as the conservative government at the time repeated the slogan 'Set the people free', promising to give the general public more access to arts, entertainment and technology. A similar technological boom has occurred in the last 15 years or so, with the invention of the internet, Facebook, smartphones, etc.

I really am that tasty'

'These are berry, berry tasty'

Wordplay: Expect multiple meanings behind words or phrases (often in the form of puns).

'Stupendous strawberries'

Alliteration: When the same consonant sound is repeated at least twice in a phrase or sentence in order to emphasise style or a particular emotion (often humour).

Rhetorical question: A question that dramatically implies an answer without stating it, allowing the audience to answer for themselves.

Hyperbole: When language is used to exaggerate statements and make something sound larger or more extreme than it really is.

'What are you waiting for?'

'The finest strawberries in the South'

Intertextuality: References and allusions to other texts that shape meaning through interpretation. (e.g. 'ripe' references to 'ripe' references).

'Get them while they're half price.'

Imperatives: Media language which directly instructs or commands the audience to take action (in this case, the action is to buy a particular product).

Each of these quotes could qualify as the SLOGAN for a strawberry advertisement. Slogans are designed to summarise the benefits or importance of a product, service or message in a short, memorable manner.

Rule of three: A rhetorical device in which a speaker or writer uses three items in a list to make a point more memorable and persuasive.

Framing – The male character is positioned centrally within the frame facing out towards the audience. This encourages the audience to identify primarily with his situation.

Advertising copy – The advert is mainly image-based. The most detailed copy comes in the form of the descriptions of the three individual chocolates in the bottom third of the page.

Typography – Tall, elegant characters emphasise the luxurious nature of the brand. The brand name is written in large text in order to catch the audience's attention.

Targeting – The age of the characters and the comedic approach to representing gender suggests that the target audience are young professionals aged between 21 and 40.

Alliteration – The use of repeated 'd' sounds ('delicious dilemma') rolls off the tongue, creating a sense of strength behind the brand.

Narrative – The male character is positioned as the hero (according to Vladimir Propp's character type theory). His dilemma in the story revolves around which of the two women (the princesses) he will choose.

Repetition – The word 'delicious' is repeated three times in the advertisement, emphasising the brand and implying that, as a result, the product tastes good.

Enigma codes – The advert sets up a puzzle by providing detail on only three of the individual chocolates. The audience must buy the entire tin in order to solve this puzzle.

Mode of address – The advert establishes a mode of address which is playful and casual in its use of alliteration and hyperbole. However, the audience is not directly addressed through the image or the text.

Anchorage – The positioning of the male character's head in front of the golden frame forms the image of a halo, providing him with godlike status.

Cultural codes – The painting in the background shows a couple dressed in clothes reminiscent of the Regency era. Certain audiences will associate these characters with a sense of luxury and cultural development. Furthermore, certain audiences will recognise the couple as Miss Sweetie and Major Quality from the 1930s adverts for Quality Street, solidifying the brand's identity.

The advert enforces a stereotype that the universal love of chocolate is shared among women. The advertisement identifies young women as their key target audience due to scientific research that chocolate increases levels of serotonin, a hormone that regulates women's brains.

KEY

The male character's eye line is directed towards the product which is presented suggestively on his lap. This gives the product something of a significance that is an effective way of contrasting the opposite.

How do we

1. The male character is dressed in a suit with a white shirt and tie, which is typical of the Regency era.
2. The woman is dressed in a long, flowing dress, which is typical of the Regency era.
3. The painting in the background is a typical example of the Regency era.
4. The image of the man's head in front of the golden frame is a typical example of the Regency era.
5. Quality Street was still a relatively new brand in 1956, so it was still a Quality Street brand id

Brand Identity

- NHS and HM Government logos are recognisable to the British UK audience. Both of the logos connote professionalism and 'help'.
- NHS logo connotes reassurance and conjure up feelings of trust and the reliability of the service, as this service that 'belongs' to the public. The poster uses the well-established brand identity of the NHS (National Health Service) to help anchor the meaning of the poster.
- The consistency of typography and colour (blue/white) links to the NHS brand identity, and is an example of synergy between the poster and the other texts in this public awareness campaign.

Text and Written Language

- The headline 'Get to the help you need' uses imperative 'get' and instructs the audience to use this service, as opposed to using 999. Instructions to the audience is conventional of advertising and often aims to create a sense of urgency and authority.
- The noun 'help' is used to connote support and medical attention, which is consistent with the NHS brand identity. It is used in both the headline and the slogan 'Help us help you'.
- The use of the web address is informative and conventional of advertising.

NHS

Use 111

If you need urgent medical help but you're not sure where to go, use 111 to get assessed and directed to the right place for you.

Call, go online or use the app for use

The NHS was promoted as a convergence of digital and traditional advertisements (billboards) to audio-visual advertisements shared via the NHS website and screened on TV to have the widest reach.

NHS 111 (2023)

Setting

- The binary opposition of domestic objects (furniture) against the clinical setting creates humour, and makes the hospital environment feel less intimidating. This not only encourages audiences to seek medical advice when necessary, but also makes the medical advice and the hospital environment feel more approachable.
- The background setting is a hospital waiting area. This creates identity with the audience, who are likely to have seen this type of setting before.
- The use of the formal and coded costumes of characters in the background of the feature image connote health, wellness and professionalism – a sign that this is a place for audiences to get help if they are unwell.
- The facemasks may also link to the historical context of the text (post-COVID) and the commonplace use of facemasks in public spaces.

Feature Image

- The key image is central to the poster. It is a long shot of a man looking at the audience. This direct address allows the audience to identify with the character, and feel part of an imagined community of UK citizens needing help from NHS 111.
- The daughter's gaze towards her father connotes that he is her main caregiver. This allows the audience to identify with the character, and think of NHS 111 when they either need help themselves or need to help a loved one with an illness.
- The man is dressed in casual clothing, and his costuming and body language connote that he is caring for his sick daughter – the audience can identify with this.
- The use of the ill daughter may provoke sympathy from the audience, which is conventional of public service campaigns.

Tag line: A catchy slogan used to increase audience intrigue. This is a rare example of a tag line being blended with the release date. The words 'fight' and 'future' immediately connote the genres of action and science fiction. The line also invokes binary opposites through the promise of a fight between two sides.

Technical information: Situated below the billing block are the age rating (R is an American rating), the logos for the two major production companies (Warner Bros. and Village Roadshow Pictures) and a link to the film's official promotional website, encouraging active audience participation.

Tzvetan Todorov was a Bulgarian-French philosopher who proposed that there is a repeated structure for all linear narratives. He discovered this while researching classic folk stories and fairy tales. This structure can be particularly applied to mainstream cinema.

Equilibrium – A state of balance in the story. There is no conflict.

Disruption – The point at which equilibrium balance is disturbed by an action or event

Recognition – The point at which the protagonist acknowledges that equilibrium has been disrupted

Resolution – The character solves the problem

New equilibrium – Balance is restored

This poster is riddled with enigma codes. The costumes and sunglasses suggest that the characters are unified in some way, but we are not sure how. Furthermore, the vertical green computer coding layered over the background connotes something that needs solving in the narrative.

The thin, digital font of the stars' names and the tag line resembles the typography seen online. This connotes modern technological themes and elements of the science-fiction genre.

Representation of Men	Representation of Women
Only the men hold guns in the poster.	The character dressed in the karate outfit is the only example of a woman who is not represented as a sexual or domestic object.
James Bond has his arms crossed, exuding strength, confidence and calm in the midst of chaos.	The women are illustrated in a way which emphasises the shape of their bottoms and breasts for heterosexual male pleasure.
James Bond and the henchman Nick Nack are dressed in full-piece suits.	Both women are heavily sexualised by the fact they are wearing revealing bikinis.
Roger Moore receives top billing followed by Christopher Lee – reflects the way men were traditionally cast as the active leads in action films.	Britt Ekland is the only woman to receive billing on the poster – suggests that women take a 'back seat' role in the story.
Bond looks into the camera frame, establishing familiarity with the audience.	Both women look into the camera, establishing familiarity with the audience.

THREE THINGS TO KNOW ABOUT THE MAN WITH THE GOLDEN GUN

	Laura Mulvey's theory of the male gaze can definitely be applied to the Bond franchise as a whole. Up until 1990, all major Bond posters depicted women in various states of undress, presumably for the pleasure of a heterosexual male audience.
	The film was released shortly after the 1973 energy crisis. The representation of petroleum in the poster relates to the Arab countries' refusal to supply oil to the West in response to their involvement in the Israel conflict.
	The Man with the Golden Gun was the second film starring Roger Moore as Bond. He had appeared in Live and Let Die the previous year. Moore had also attracted a large fan base due to his playing the lead role in the TV series The Saint (1962–1969).

EXAMPLES OF ROLAND BARTHES' CODES ?

Action code: The golden gun being loaded with a bullet with '007' inscribed on it implies that the unknown assailant intends to shoot James Bond.

Enigma code: The face and body of the man holding the golden gun are not visible. The audience must wonder who the man with the golden gun is, a question that can only answer by watching the film.

Semic code: The fact that both white women wear revealing bikinis suggests that these characters will form sexual or romantic relationships with Bond.

Cultural code: The man in the boat on the top right-hand side is wearing a conical hat, possibly hinting at an Asian setting.

Symbolic code: Multiple binary opposites are present in the poster: two women, one protecting Bond and one pointing him out to the shooter (good vs evil); Bond (the hero) facing off against the man with the golden gun (the villain); the blown-up beach hut on the left contrasting with the untouched hut on the right (chaos vs order).

Action code	Bond driving the Aston Martin car at the bottom of the poster. This implies that Bond is chasing someone and also connotes the something or someone.
Semantic code	All of the males on the poster are wearing suits or a shirt and tie, which have connotations of 'high-class' events. This is in juxtaposition to the image of the bar with the neon sign, which does not look like a 'high-class' location.
Symbolic code	The contrast between the shades of blue and orange and the bold typography for the title creates clear binary opposites: light and darkness; life and danger.
Cultural code	The female wearing a military uniform and a gun has connotations of the armed forces and protecting others. This connotes that she is a protector of others and will also take the 'Helper' character role in the narrative.

INTERTEXTUALITY IN THE NO TIME TO DIE POSTER...

The Aston Martin car at the bottom of the poster has long been associated with the Bond franchise. The first Bond film to feature an Aston Martin was Goldfinger (1964).

There are references to previous Daniel Craig Bond films (this was his final appearance). These include Bond on a motorcycle (a key scene from Skyfall) and Madeleine (bottom right), a returning character from Spectre.

Daniel Craig's cool and calm posture pays homage to previous images of the character in film marketing material (particularly Sean Connery, the first actor to play the role of James Bond).

Bond is iconic of the classic Hollywood action hero, who solves narrative conflict through violence. This stereotype almost always manifests itself in male characters, perpetuating the idea that men are physically stronger and more violent than women. This is emphasised by the fact that Bond features three times across the poster to reinforce his dominance.

Two female characters are stereotyped as feminine 'Bond girl' archetypes. The glamorous costumes and poses of the characters stereotype them through appearance and beauty.

The Bond franchise has moved towards more modern representations of women and away from the old 'Bond girl' image. However, Paloma's dress and presentation on the poster is reminiscent of older Bond girls, representing women in the franchise as passive and objectified.

Representation of the Heroic Male Genre

Two of the female characters are holding weapons, and one is wearing military uniform. This challenges stereotypes and represents their characters through aggression.

Bond is positioned centrally, the largest character on the poster. The other male character is positioned as the antagonist (another key narrative role), which supports the representation of males as active and dominant.

Like all previous lead actors in the franchise, Craig is a white, middle-aged actor who speaks in an RP accent, connoting middle-upper-class roots. He possesses many of the same identifying qualities as classic action heroes from the early days of Hollywood cinema.

The black female is the third largest character and has a strong body position. This countertypes her gender and ethnicity and represents her as a role model.

The production and circulation of modern media products have been significantly affected by the development of online technology. Most media companies will maintain active social media pages, allowing them to target a wider range of audiences. For example, distribution companies will generate hype for a new film by releasing posters and trailers through various social media accounts. They then rely on audiences to share this marketing material, building a larger audience through word of mouth.

Active audience: An audience that actively selects the types of media product they consume. They are also able to actively engage and interpret messages within a media text, applying different readings to different messages.

Passive consumer: An audience that consumes various types of media without actively engaging with the content's messages. They are also happy to accept the meaning of a media product on the most basic and superficial level.

Mass audience: A large audience with mixed interests that collectively consumes the same media product that appeals to the general interests of the masses. It is often mainstream media that appeals to mass audiences.

Niche audience: A small audience with specialised and particular interests. Producers often create much smaller-scale products for these audiences as the financial return is not often very high.

A demographic is a group of people distinguished by their identity or socio-economic status: gender, race, age, class, marital status, ability/disability.

A psychographic is a group of people distinguished by their lifestyle, habits and interests: Donald Trump supporters, sports fans, city dwellers, gamers, feminists, etc.

The primary audience is the main group targeted by a media product. For example, e.g. GQ magazine has a primary audience of young men.

MEDIA AUDIENCES

The Effects Debate: For a long time, it was widely accepted that a large section of the public were passive consumers, taking the messages encoded in media products at face value.

This in turn sparked a debate as to whether the media could shape people's attitudes and behaviours for the worst. A key example of the effects debate taking place in British history was the outrage that was provoked by the release of video nasties: a list of unregulated horror films which began to circulate through video shops throughout the 1980s. Politicians and the press expressed their moral outrage and began a fierce campaign to have these videos banned. They argued that the general public (particularly young people) could be encouraged to engage in violent behaviour if they were exposed to these films. In hindsight, this campaign is considered to be an extreme overreaction and a patronising way of viewing media audiences.

Stuart Hall - Reception Theory

It is widely agreed that media producers encode messages into their products in order to invoke a particular response from the audience.

The audience in turn will decode these messages, however, they will not always do this in the way the producer(s) intended.

Preferred Reading -
The audience accepts the encoded messages and interprets the product in the exact way in which it was intended, e.g. 'Call of Duty is an exciting game with fantastically realistic graphics'.

Negotiated Reading -
Certain encoded messages are accepted by the audience whereas others are challenged e.g. "Call of Duty is very well designed, but the gameplay becomes boring. I don't think I'm the target audience"

Oppositional Reading -
The audience rejects the encoded messages entirely, e.g. 'Call of Duty is a disgusting game that encourages teenagers to become violent machines. It's incredibly boring'.

The secondary audience will be a group that consumes a media product even though they are not the main target audience, e.g. young women might also read GQ magazine in order to understand men's interests.

A watermark is a faint image or text that is visible during the production of a document or image.

Traditional ways in which newspaper readers could become active audiences

Writing letters to editors; holding a protest; calling the paper's offices and lodging a complaint; taking legal action; boycotting the paper

Contemporary ways in which newspaper readers can become active audiences

Sending direct emails; joining online media; signing petitions; endorsing the paper on social media; promoting the paper online (e.g. through Facebook, YouGov)

Greater public exposure to issues relating to the ethics of journalism, particularly through cases such as the Leveson Inquiry

An increasing access to news from different types of media platform (e.g. unedited long-form podcasts). Audiences have to be more selective about the form of news they choose to consume.

How have newspaper audiences become more active over time?

The rise of the Internet and digital media platforms has made audiences increasingly aware of tabloids and their habits of not reporting fully accurate information (e.g. an apology for printing false information is made public)

Multiple news platforms are increasingly contradicting each other, forcing people to interpret information that

Newspapers such as the Leiston Evening Standard that are given out for free are often tabloids. The vast majority of free sheets are tabloids as they aim to appeal to as universal an audience as possible. They tend to generate profit solely through advertising revenue

The vast majority of newspapers in the UK have experienced a decline in profits throughout the past few years. This is partly due to the increasing availability of news online, e.g. through phone apps and social media. For instance, look at the daily readership figures for The Guardian for each media platform:

Print: 741,000 adults

PC: 1,492,000 adults

Mobile: 3,347,000 adults

Key Terms

Gatekeepers are the people responsible for dictating, filtering and disseminating the information which is broadcast or uploaded. These are usually the owners of the media company, e.g. Rupert Murdoch.

Opinion leaders are people in society who have the power to affect what people think about things. Celebrities are easily identifiable opinion leaders in today's society, but sports personalities, journalists, politicians, religious leaders and activists are also appropriate examples.

Bias is an inclination or prejudice for or against something, e.g. The Sun is currently biased in favour of the Conservative Party.

Columns are short, compressed newspaper articles in which a writer or opinion leader will express their opinion on a certain topic or issue, e.g. Katie Hopkins and Giles Coren are notable examples of this.

Uses and Gratifications

	The Sun provides information by printing contemporary news, particularly those that focus on international news and politics.
	The Sun provides entertainment and distraction for its readers by featuring celebrity gossip, strong opinion pieces, human interest stories, various brainteasers and crosswords.
	The Sun appeals to its audience's sense of personal identity by featuring stories about ordinary people while enforcing certain sociopolitical ideologies and presenting news in layman's terms.
	The Sun encourages social interaction by enabling online comments on its website and providing material for water-cooler topics (things that can be discussed casually in a place of work).

Tactics used	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Bright, flashy colours</li> <li>Bold layout</li> <li>Shocking headlines</li> <li>Sensationalism</li> <li>Clear political bias</li> </ul>
The risk of these tactics	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Perceived lack of quality</li> <li>Misinformation</li> <li>Lack of journalistic integrity</li> <li>Greater focus on scandal than on truth</li> <li>Patronising mode of address</li> </ul>

There are two main sources of revenue: payment for physical issues and advertising. The news industry's heavy focus on advertising has led many to start seeing journalism as a commodity rather than an impartial form of delivering information.

The Hillsborough Disaster: In April 1989, 96 people were crushed and killed at the Hillsborough Stadium in Sheffield during a football match between Nottingham Forest and Liverpool. A few days later, The Sun newspaper printed a headline entitled 'The Truth', in which it accused Liverpool fans of stealing from victims of the tragedy, assaulting police officers and preventing efforts to save lives. Liverpool people were outraged at the way in which The Sun used sensationalist language to vilify their fellow fans. The Sun later apologised for the way in which it had reported the tragedy. Since the Hillsborough disaster, there has been a widespread boycott of The Sun throughout Liverpool leading to a significant reduction in readership. Journalists are taught to 'never bite the hand that feeds you' in relation to the owners of media companies. What this shows is that betraying your audience can prove costly.

- Like other commercial companies, The Sun has diversified into other industries (news) in order to increase its profit and audience reach. Examples of this include:
- Sun Bingo – an online gambling subsidiary
  - Sun Savers – advice and guidance on saving money for groceries
  - Sun Superdays – vouchers for days out
  - Dream Team – an online gambling subsidiary based around football

THE IMPORTANCE OF A GOOD WEBSITE

Audiovisual material: Links are provided to the film's three main trailers. There are also links to featurette videos and lyric videos for songs which appear in the film.

Technical information: The film's high budget special effects and unique animation make it an event film. Much emphasis is placed on the availability of 3D screenings in cinemas.

Critical reception: Since the film's release, Spider-Man: Into the Spider-Verse has received extreme critical acclaim and an Academy Award. This information is regularly added to the website.

Sponsorship: Unusually, the website does not directly promote any sponsorship or advertising. McDonald's, Coca-Cola, and Jordan are mentioned among various other brands.

Interactive features: The website features an augmented reality experience available on the smartphone and tablet. This demonstrates the film's producers' interest in the ways in which digital video games can be used.

Narrative and character: The website features a 'Gallery' page, a 'Characters' page, and a 'Behind the Scenes' page, encouraging audiences to become familiar with the characters and the world of the film.

British Film Regulation

Age ratings applied to films in the UK are decided by the British Board of Film Classification (BBFC). Films are assigned one of seven core age certificates, based on a set of eight content categories.

DISTINGUISHING RATINGS

Remember that films are only rated 12A when they are distributed to cinemas. This rating means people under the age of 12 can see the film, providing they are accompanied by an adult. Home media releases are rated 12 and can only be purchased by those who are older than 12.

A distribution company is responsible for the marketing and promotion of a film, as well as the channel through which the film will go through in order to reach target audiences, e.g. cinemas, television, video rights, streaming services.

Blockbusters are high-budget films designed to appeal to a wide demographic and make studios a lot of money, e.g. Avengers: Endgame, Time to Die, Skyfall.

Independent forms of media are free from the influence of the government or corporate interests. Independent films tend to be more experimental with a great deal of creative freedom, e.g. Lady Bird, Blade Runner 2049, Blake.

For many audiences, Craig has become the quintessential Bond actor, appearing in some of the franchise's most critically acclaimed films, as well as in a video segment at the 2012 London Olympics.

Cary Joji Fukunaga: First gained mainstream critical success with his 2011 directorial adaptation of Jane Eyre. He was the first director of Asian descent to win an Emmy for his work on TV show True Detective. He also co-wrote the 2017 Stephen King adaptation of IT. His eclectic body of work meant that he became the producers' choice to replace Danny Boyle, the original director of No Time to Die.

Christoph Waltz: The German actor shot to fame playing the infamous 'Jew hunter' in the film Inglourious Basterds (2009). Waltz has since become one of the most iconic screen actors of recent years, bringing his sinister charm to the role of Bond's most classic nemesis, Blofeld (a character who had already appeared in two previous Bond franchises) in No Time to Die.

Naomie Harris: Despite working as a character actor throughout the noughties, Harris rose to fame thanks to her co-starring role in Skyfall (2012) and Spectre (2015) as the iconic character of Moneypenny. Appearing in such a large franchise has put Harris on the road to global stardom. In 2017, Harris received an Academy Award nomination for her performance in Moonlight (2016).

Comparing the production budgets and worldwide gross (not adjusted for inflation) for the oldest Bond films against the most recent Bond films

Dr. No	$1.1 million	$59.6 million
From Russia with Love	$2 million	$79 million
Goldfinger	$3 million	$124.9 million
Thunderball	$9 million	$141.2 million
Casino Royale	$150 million	$599 million
Quantum of Solace	$200 million	$586.1 million
Skyfall	$200 million	$1.18 billion
Spectre	$245 million	$880.7 million
No Time to Die	$250 million	$774.1 million

After a long-delayed release due to the COVID-19 pandemic, No Time to Die had a global premiere at the Royal Albert Hall in London, UK. In attendance were many cast and crew members, such as Daniel Craig (Bond), Cary Fukunaga (director), Naomie Harris (Moneypenny), Ben Whishaw (Q), Lea Seydoux (Madeleine). Guests also included the Prince of Wales (Charles) and the Duchess of Cornwall (Camilla), the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh (William and Catherine).

The film was released in IMAX theatres, demonstrating to the audience that the film would be of a high visual quality and require viewing on the big screen. This was particularly important for No Time to Die as the film's release was pushed back numerous times due to the coronavirus pandemic. The IMAX release would have been a major pull factor for film fans to watch it at the cinema.

The high budget allowed the filmmakers to produce intense and exciting action sequences. No Time to Die broke the Guinness World Record for the largest amount of high explosives in one shot. This featured in one of the vlogs for the film as a form of marketing.

Radio Technology

The most common types of radio found today in the UK are digital or DAB (digital audio broadcasting). Unlike analogue radios which used to be most common, digital radios:

- have a much higher sound quality
- can transmit more information
- allow more stations to be received, due to their higher bandwidth

Despite its many benefits, digital radio is still in its infancy. For a long time, FM (frequency modulation) has been the most widely used form of radio broadcasting in the UK. The change in frequency from analogue to digital meant there was no static (unwanted noise).

In a wider sense, digital technologies are turning radio into a part of an online industry; the rise of streaming services allows people to listen to the radio over the internet, and digital technological platforms (e.g. tablets, androids), audiences can listen to their favourite radio programmes through catch-up services like BBC iPlayer, and audiences can also listen to radio through social media channels.

Did you know? As of 2024, digital listening accounted for 72.2% of the total listening market in the UK.

Key Definitions

Public service broadcaster

A broadcasting company that is financed by public funding and, therefore, is obliged to offer its content as a form of public service.

Commercial broadcaster

A broadcasting company financed through advertising or subscription revenue. Its main concern is to create content with the aim of making as much profit as possible.

A royal charter

When a monarch approves the creation of an organisation through an official document. For example, King George V approved the BBC in 1922 as a media platform designed to entertain and inform the British public.

Radio

The UK's official public service broadcaster, widely considered to be owned by the British public

Strictly concerns itself with the policy of informing, educating and entertaining its audience

Celebrity interview

Music exclusively

The BBC

Responsible for delivering a public service in exchange for the public's finance through TV licence payments

There is no advertising on public service broadcasters

Political Bias

Considering that the BBC is run by the government on behalf of the British people, most believe that the organisation should not express support for one political ideology over another. In recent years, many have accused the BBC of promoting a liberal/left-leaning agenda.

In a 2025 poll by YouGov, 42% of participants responded by saying the BBC was biased in their output to some degree. 17% of the participants felt that the BBC was 'generally much more favourable towards Labour and/or the left'.

RADIO – DESERT ISLAND DISCS

Desert Island Discs – key facts

Desert Island Discs has been on BBC radio since 1942. The premise is that each episode features a famous guest – or ‘castaway’ – who is interviewed by the presenter.

The castaway is asked to choose eight records, a book and a luxury item to take with them if they were to be stranded on a desert island.

All guests are given the choice of William Shakespeare and a record of their choosing, if they would like it.

They then discuss their life and choices, exploring the meaning and significance of the tracks played and items chosen.

Why do audiences listen?

Personal Identity (Uses & Gratifications):

Audiences engage by comparing their own music choices and life stories with those of the guest, reinforcing their own identity and reflecting on their own experiences. "I didn't realise she overcame that much to get where she is."

Surveillance/Information (Uses & Gratifications):

Listeners gain insights into famous people's lives, careers and beliefs, which can inform or inspire their own choices. "I didn't realise she overcame that much to get where she is."

Diversion/Escapism (Uses & Gratifications):

The show's format allows listeners to mentally escape into the idea of being stranded on a desert island, offering a sense of comfort or fantasy during everyday life. "It helps me unwind after a stressful day."

Social Interaction (Uses & Gratifications):

Listeners often discuss episodes with others or share their favourite tracks online, using the show as a talking point in social circles. "Did you hear what David Beckham did for his first track?"

Traditional ways audiences could listen to the radio

At home; in the car; in cafés/restaurants; at work

Contemporary ways audiences can listen to the radio

Computers; phones; tablets; laptop; TV; smart speaker

Creating Playlists (Convergence & Active Audiences):

Users actively engage by curating Desert Island Discs-inspired playlists on streaming platforms – becoming producers as well as consumers.

User-generated content = prosumer culture (Toffler).

Audience Choice (Active Audiences):

Rather than being passive, modern audiences choose which episodes to listen to, how, and when – shaping their own media experience.

The modern audience is in control, not the broadcaster.

Keeping it relevant:

Over time, Desert Island Discs has adapted to changing audience expectations – becoming more relevant and more open in tone, reflecting important topics. Its adaptability has allowed it to survive decades of broadcasting and industry changes.

Social impact:

Some episodes of Desert Island Discs have had a significant social impact. For example, the show has been used to raise awareness of competing in sport with a disability and the Paralympics; Labour MP David Lammy used it to discuss justice; Malala Yousafzai, the Nobel Peace Prize winner for education and surviving a Taliban attack. The show's opinion and how radio can be more than just entertainment.

EXAMPLES OF AUDIENCE APPEAL AND ENGAGEMENT

It is conventional for a popular radio show to be repeated on a different day as a 'catch up' broadcast.

Interactivity through Social Media (Convergence & Active Audiences):

Fans comment on episodes or engage with official BBC content via X, Facebook or Instagram, showing active participation.

Live posting: "That Nina Simone track hit me right in the heart."

Digital Convergence:

Audiences can now stream Desert Island Discs via BBC Sounds, Spotify, or Apple Podcasts – demonstrating platform convergence and on-demand engagement.

Listening on the bus, in bed, or while cooking – wherever, whenever.

Desert Island Discs is broadcast on BBC Radio 4 along with radio shows such as The Archers, Woman's Hour and BBC Inside Science.

- 📌 Desert Island Discs is one of the most popular radio shows in the world, which made it stand out.
- 📌 The BBC is a public service broadcaster, funded through a combination of licence fees and advertising.
- 📌 Desert Island Discs is very popular and has a long history.
- 📌 Desert Island Discs helps to educate and inform about its guests.
- 📌 Desert Island Discs helps to promote a range of sectors, to help people understand the world.
- 📌 The BBC, which makes Desert Island Discs available worldwide through BBC Sounds.
- 📌 By featuring guests from different backgrounds, it helps to promote diversity.
- 📌 While the BBC doesn't sell advertising, it does have other sources of income.

PEGI (Pan European Game Information) is the European regulator for video game content. The organisation's central aim is to create video game ratings which will protect minors from harmful content. PEGI sets the standards by which video games released in countries residing in the European Union are regulated. This also applies to several other countries including Pakistan, Israel and India. Germany is one of the few exceptions as its video game content is regulated by USK (Entertainment Software Self-Regulation Body).

PEGI organises game classifications

There are eight content indicators that PEGI considers before assigning classification:

Offensive language

Discrimination

Substance abuse

Online interaction

Gambling

Frightening content

Sex or nudity

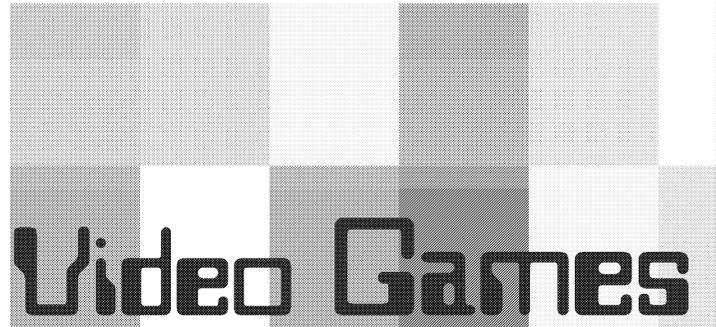

Violence

Remember: It is the Video Standards Council Rating Board that is actually responsible for assigning the PEGI classifications to games released in the UK.

Remember: Certain video games receive different classifications on different platforms. For example, Pokémon Go received a 3+ rating on the Google Play store and a 9+ rating on the Apple iTunes store.

USES AND GRATIFICATIONS MOBILE GAMING

- Entertainment/diversion: addictive nature of mobile games keeps audiences distracted from daily life; audiences can become immersed in the impressive special effects of certain games which can be played while on public transport or in a waiting room
- Information: certain mobile games test and improve trivia skills; certain games test maths and problem-solving skills; minor enthusiasts to remain updated with the latest technological trends; users learn the skills and techniques required to complete the game
- Personal development: provides the opportunity for audiences to overcome challenges; increase their confidence; when levels, costumes and bonuses are unlocked; Players must learn from mistakes and improve; audiences can affirm their status as gamers
- Social interaction: audiences can share achievements with their friends online and in person; certain games require multiple players; Games such as Fortnite: Battle Royale enable hundreds of players from around the world to play against each other live.

It was predicted that the global market for mobile games would be worth $137 billion in 2018

For the first time in history, revenue from mobile games was predicted to overtake all other platforms, most notably game consoles

Statistical projections and industry forecasts from Newzoo (2018)

How does Fortnite make money?

Audiences are able to purchase weapons, traps, emotes (player dance moves), skins (character appearances) and upgrades on Fortnite using V-bucks, the in-game currency. V-bucks can be purchased in exchange for real money.

Battle Passes are extremely popular among gamers who don't have the time or the patience to complete achievements through the gameplay. A Battle Pass costs the equivalent of $9.50 in V-bucks.

According to a LendEDU survey, approximately 70% of players are thought to make in-game purchases.

In order to play Fortnite: Save the World, audiences must buy a pack through the official website. There is a standard edition that costs £34.99 and a deluxe edition that costs £49.99. Occasionally, large discounts will be offered.

Fortnite was developed by Epic Games and PopCap Games.

Fortnite is responsible for the success of Epic Games.

Epic Games was previously credited with developing the Unreal Engine. This has enhanced the experience of playing shooter, stealth and fighting games, including Gears of War.

In 2018, Fortnite: Battle Royale won 'Best Ongoing Game' at the PC Gamer and IGN awards.

In 2018, Fortnite: Battle Royale was found to be the highest grossing free-to-play game of all time.

As of April 2019, there were 200 million registered players worldwide.

Figures from Superdata suggest that the game's revenue decreased by a third in the 12 months between May of 2018 and May of 2019.

There have been many concerns about the negative effects that Fortnite might have on its players...

In April 2019, a GP allegedly prescribed an 11-year-old boy a ban from playing video games, citing Fortnite as a key example.

Research suggests that in 2018 alone, Fortnite was referred to as a contributor to over 200 divorces.

On a public visit to a school to talk about mental health with young people, Prince William criticised Fortnite, claiming that it was keeping children addicted to their screens and saying that parents should not allow their children to play it.

The conclusion of in-app purchase mechanics is of concern to the press has regularly reported on young people amassing wealth through their purchase of micro-transactions with in-game items.

On the contrary... Andrew Reid, a researcher at Glasgow University, criticised the assumption that all gamers are addicted. He claimed that there were potentially positive effects of playing video games, e.g. problem-solving, hand-eye coordination and creativity. He is not helpful to stigmatise typical gamers based on films.

Entertainment/diversion
 • Simple structure of Battle Royale makes for an addictive game
 • Expansive sci-fi setting offers escapism
 • Difficult and violent gameplay offers catharsis
 • Challenging gameplay adds a sense of excitement and immediacy
 • Game requires focus and attention in order to be successful
 Involves skill and strategy: opportunity for social interaction, hideouts and secret bases.

Personalisation
 • Competitive aspect: being the last player standing affirms the audience's status as a skilled gamer
 • In Battle Royale, the player is in competition with themselves
 • Customisation options allow players to personalise characters
 • Players can take pride in unlocking emotes, traps, weapons, etc.
 • Most-skilled players can enter into tournaments and compete for the status of being the world's best Fortnite player

MEDIA LANGUAGE

Signs are designed to convey meaningful and important information in a condensed way. The study and understanding of signs and the meaning they communicate is called semiotics. In the media, it is agreed among producers and audiences that specific meanings can be attributed to certain signs. Denotation refers to what is literally visible within a sign or symbol. Connotations are the meanings associated with a sign or symbol.

Conservative 'chatterboxes' that accused Boris Johnson of lying after the No 10 dinner that prime minister was warned against allowing a "firing squad" to be held "privately" during the first lockdown.

Johnson admitted to the dinner but said that he attended drinks at the Downing Street residence in May 2020, which had been cancelled but was held if it was a social gathering.

The news was reported by Johnson's principal private secretary, Mrs. Marina Reynolds, who said people in "the living room" because "but he had stressed that the prime minister saw the emailed invitation by almost two weeks. It has since denied allegations that two senior staffers warned Johnson to signalled with the event, saying this was "not true".

But Cummings, a former senior aide to the former minister, wrote a polemic opinion piece in The Guardian that accused Mr. Johnson of perpetually lying to the public that he would not break the rules and called Reynolds a liar.

Tzvetan Todorov was a Bulgarian-French philosopher who proposed that there is a repeated structure for all linear narratives. He discovered this while researching classic folk stories and fairy tales. This structure can be particularly applied to mainstream cinema.

This poster is riddled with _____. The costumes and sunglasses suggest that the characters are unified in some way, but we are not sure how. Furthermore, the vertical green computer coding layered over the background connotes something that needs solving in the narrative.

The thin, distorted _____ title _____ the _____ the _____ is broken or _____ imputed by a higher power. The sans serif font of the stars' names and the tag line resembles the typography seen online. This connotes modern technological themes and elements of the science-fiction genre.

After a long-delayed release due to the COVID-19 pandemic, No Time to Die had a global premiere at the Royal Albert Hall in London, UK. In attendance were many cast members, such as Daniel Craig (Bond), Cary Joji Fukunaga (director), Naomie Harris (Money Penny), Ben Whishaw (Q) and Rami Malek (Madeleine). Guests included the Prince of Wales (Charles) and the Duchess of Cornwall (Camilla) and the Duke and Duchess of Cambridge (William and Catherine).

The film was released in IMAX theatres, demonstrating to the audience that the film would be of a high visual quality and require viewing on the big screen. This was particularly important for No Time to Die as the film's release was pushed back numerous times due to the coronavirus pandemic. The IMAX release would have been a major pull factor for film fans to watch it at the cinema.

The high budget allowed the filmmakers to produce intense and exciting action sequences. No Time to Die broke the Guinness World Record for the largest amount of high explosives in one shot. This featured in one of the vlogs for the film as a form of marketing.

- Daniel Craig in No Time to Die was reported to be the highest paid actor in the franchise.
- The soundtrack for No Time to Die was the first to feature a female artist, with the film's theme song 'No Time to Die' by Billie Eilish.
- No Time to Die is the first Bond film with a female lead character.
- The franchise's first film shot across Italy.
- Despite Bond being a franchise, Choosing Billie Eilish as producers' purpose.
